DETAILED ACTION

Claims 1-5 are presented for examination on the merits.

Priority

Acknowledgment is made of applicant's claim of domestic priority under Provisional Application No. 60/235,738, filed on September 27, 2000.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --

(c) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Johnson, Jr.,

U.S. Patent 6,078,888.

As per the following claims, Johnson, Jr. discloses:

1. A method for conducting a financial transaction with a merchant by a consumer over a communication network and involving a payment network having an issuer for authorizing said transaction based on standard authorization criteria including transaction data and based on a positive authentication of said consumer, said method comprising: utilizing one of a plurality of authentication mechanisms for providing said consumer with cardholder authentication data (column 5, lines 39-65); utilizing a universal cardholder authentication field for transmitting to said merchant said cardholder authentication data regardless of the authentication mechanism utilized (column 10, lines 10-21); generating an authorization request including said cardholder authentication data (column 5, lines 50-55); forwarding said request over the payment network (column 5, lines 50-56); and verifying by said issuer said authentication data and authorizing said transaction by said issuer based on said positive verification and on said standard criteria (column 8, lines 15-53).

2. The method of claim 1 wherein said payment network includes a merchant's acquirer and further including the steps of passing said authentication field data along with said transaction data to said acquirer and generating by said acquirer said authorization request (figure 5 and associated text).
3. The method of claim 2 wherein said authentication data comprises at least one of digital certificate serial numbers, digital signatures, application cryptograms and passwords established through at least one of a digital wallet server and smart card (column 4, lines 4-48).
4. The method of claim 3 wherein said consumer utilizes an account number for said transaction and said account number has an associated expiration date and an associated available credit line and wherein said standard authorization criteria comprises an evaluation of said expiration date and said available credit (column 4, lines 4-25; figure 13b and associated text).
5. The method of claim 4 wherein said universal cardholder authentication field is automatically populated with said cardholder authentication data (column 8, lines 5-53).

Claims 1-5 are further rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Hogan et al., U.S. Application 2002/0116341 A1.

As per the following claims, Hogan et al. discloses:

1. A method for conducting a financial transaction with a merchant by a consumer over a communication network and involving a payment network having an issuer for authorizing said transaction based on standard authorization criteria including transaction data and based on a positive authentication of said consumer, said method comprising: utilizing one of a plurality of authentication mechanisms for providing said consumer with cardholder authentication data; utilizing a universal cardholder authentication field for transmitting to said merchant said cardholder authentication data regardless of the authentication mechanism utilized; generating an authorization request including said cardholder authentication data; forwarding said request over the payment network; and verifying by said issuer said authentication data and authorizing said transaction by said issuer based on said positive verification and on said standard criteria (§§36-41)).
2. The method of claim 1 wherein said payment network includes a merchant's acquirer and further including the steps of passing said authentication field data along with said transaction data to said acquirer and generating by said acquirer said authorization request (§§42-44).
3. The method of claim 2 wherein said authentication data comprises at least one of digital certificate serial numbers, digital signatures, application cryptograms and passwords established through at least one of a digital wallet server and smart card (§57-64).

4. The method of claim 3 wherein said consumer utilizes an account number for said transaction and said account number has an associated expiration date and an associated available credit line and wherein said standard authorization criteria comprises an evaluation of said expiration date and said available credit (§178-184).

5. The method of claim 4 wherein said universal cardholder authentication field is automatically populated with said cardholder authentication data (§224, 279, 281).

The applied reference has a common assignee with the instant application. Based upon the earlier effective U.S. filing date of the reference, it constitutes prior art under 35 U.S.C. 102(e). This rejection under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) might be overcome either by a showing under 37 CFR 1.132 that any invention disclosed but not claimed in the reference was derived from the inventor of this application and is thus not the invention "by another," or by an appropriate showing under 37 CFR 1.131.
